

CHALK MYSTERY NEARLY SOLVED

Famous Emulator of Herlock
Sholmes Tracks Authors of Corner Tragedy.

The Washington Times has obtained the services of the greatest living psycho-hydro detective Murgatroyd McGlue, to solve the great chalk mystery, and write exclusively for The Times readers his daily discoveries.

Murgatroyd McGlue, the great psycho-hydro detective, was bending over an intricate array of Geisler tubes and insulated wires, examining a bit of bark from the dog that bit the brother of the suspect in the great Pawpaw murder case, when I burst in on him.

"We want you to clean up the great chalk mystery," I gasped, breathless from my run of several blocks from the office.

Telling Him the Story.

"Dear, dear," smiled the usually impetuous McGlue, "this is a job for a schoolboy with an eraser. Sit down and tell me all about it," and with one hand he motioned me to a piano stool, while with the other he poured out a thimbleful of rare Milwaukee vintage and passed it to me with a box of cigars and a lighted match.

"You probably noticed that Captain Jollyberger, of the Police Department, is anxious to learn who marked up the Washington sidewalks with notices of suffrage meetings last Friday morning." I began, after motioning the drink aside and whittling the match down to a toothpick. "He has a warrant out for Miss Lucy Learns, which has not been served because she is out of town. The whole department is strangely baffled, and the city editor of The Times wants me to enlist your services in clearing up the case."

Visit Scene of Crime.

Murgatroyd reached for his hat, and we started at once for the scene of the late chalking at Fifteenth street and New York avenue.

"Mike McGlueholley, the great German scientist, has prepared an exhaustive work on chalk marks on sidewalks," explained the scientific sleuth as we proceeded. "He discovered that marks made north and south were in inverse ratio to the size of the writer's foot, while those in a counter-clockwise direction were usually straight or else more or less curved. But who have we here?"

"We had heard the corner of mystery, and there stood a muffled figure behind a huge beard, the resourceful McGlue found the word 'Miholland' scrawled in a protected corner. Placing his hat over it he hurried to his laboratory and soon returned with what looked like an accordion fitted up with a wireless telegraph outfit. He sprinkled a teaspoon full of fine flour over the first three letters of the word and from the accordion produced a pair of wooden shoes which he placed over the others. Then he threw a double pole switch and the whole apparatus was bathed in a series of electric sparks.

"You see," explained Murgatroyd, "the captain grew so big that he heard the flour will induce ultra violet rays, which if photographed on a fluorescent screen will show the color of the hair of the woman who wrote the 'MIL.' On the same principle the wooden shoes will give the size of the feet of the one that wrote the 'Holland.'"

Sifting the Evidence.

At this the accordion began automatically to play the first bars of "Home, Sweet Home," and the psycho-

Threatened Strike Of Teamsters Begins

By Warehouse Riot
INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 20.—A strike of union teamsters in this city, long threatened, broke out today with rioting at the Go-burn warehouse, in South Missouri street. Police reserves restored order. Many employers accepted the union's demands for higher wages.

hydro expert grabbed up the apparatus and rushed back to his room. For three hours he was in his dark room, and when he came out I saw by the way he overshot the cuspidor with a pint of tobacco juice that he was pleased.

"There were six suffragettes who did the marking," he said, holding up a ribbon of moving picture film that showed Mrs. Pankhurst offering a cup of tea to Premier Asquith. "One of them had just washed her hair and couldn't do a thing with it, four of them wore hats that were buckled on with a that latch, and the sixth had bunions."

"Great," I shouted with admiration.

"It's a learning fast," said the great sleuth. "It is indeed a pipe. (To be concluded sometime.)"

CHURCH WILL HEAR WHITE SLAVE CASE

Isaiah Kenney Will Get Trial on Charge Room at Shop Was for Immorality.

BEVERLY, Mass., Nov. 20.—Isaiah Kenney, a churchworker, who appeared when he was sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment on a white slave charge, today denied that he had fitted up a room in his shop for illegal purposes.

The Rev. C. W. Chamberlain, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said today Kenney would give an immediate hearing by the church to the charges against him.

"We suspected that he was drifting away from the church," the minister said, "but no one dreamed he was engaged in such a business as the lower court convicted him of."

The convicted man's wife today declared her husband was not guilty of any wrong, and stood behind him when he explained that the furnished room in his best factory was a part of the property subject to a lunch company, and that one of the company's employees slept there.

"Wait until I get on trial in the superior court," he said, "and I will tell them a few things they didn't know before."

Farm Hands Confess Pinkerton's Murder

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 20.—After being misled since November 7, S. Lewis Pinkerton, a tax collector of Delaware county, was found murdered early today in a lonely wood near Darlington Station.

Boyd S. Pennington and George Marsh, farmhands, who were arrested yesterday on suspicion, are said to have confessed that they killed Pinkerton. The subjects of his lectures will be parliamentary methods, the labor question, and woman suffrage.

Socialist to Visit U. S.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Among the notable passengers sailing for America today was George Lansbury, the well-known Socialist and former member of parliament.

Other side Mr. Lansbury will deliver a series of lectures in some of the larger cities. The subjects of his lectures will be parliamentary methods, the labor question, and woman suffrage.

SPECIAL SESSION'S MILEAGE RECEIVED

Real Issue Is Whether Congress
Can Collect on the Regular Session.

Just at this time, while a lot of talk is being indulged in about the question of Congressional mileage and the public is solemnly discussing whether members of Congress ought to be allowed mileage for the special session, it is a fact worth some attention that Congress already has received its mileage for the special session.

Months ago, members of the House and Senate got their mileage and either sailed it down in bank or spent it. Soon after the special session opened there was a distribution of mileage. The usual sums were allowed. The statements were not kept long waiting to receive their perquisite, as anyone can easily verify by consulting the records. The regular session, however, or Senate whether he was allowed mileage for the special session last spring, some $200,000 was distributed on the basis of 30 cents per mile, the amount of mileage allowed by law until the session closed, and the men still travel to Washington and back to their homes in stage coaches and on horseback.

No Recess Expected.

The fact that mileage already has been disbursed for the special session is peculiarly interesting in view of the talk that there will be no adjournment of the special session and no actual recess. Congress in order to avoid a mileage scandal.

The question which is now at issue is whether members will be allowed their mileage for the regular session. Good authorities say it is doubtful, as a matter of law, if it can be prevented. This is clearly a matter of law, and members shall be allowed mileage for each regular session. At the same time, the mileage appropriation may be made available for extra sessions.

If the law is followed with respect to mileage, the question of the adjournment of the special session will be determined whether a public hearing will be held by the full board.

STREET CAR PROBE SHOWS PROGRESS

Public Utilities Commission
Gaining Insight of Affairs of Traction Company.

Progress is reported by the Public Utilities Commission in its investigation of the affairs of the Washington Railway and Electric Company of all extra dividend of 1 per cent on its common stock. After being in session three months, the commission, which is represented by Engineer Commissioner Harding, chairman, has begun to gain an insight into the affairs of the traction company. How long the investigation will last is problematical. One line of inquiry was another, the result being that no angle of the investigation is overlooked.

Insistence made, it is understood, on strict compliance with the company's assurance that it would produce before the commission all the information required, provided the public was excluded from the hearings. After remaining in session until 6:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the hearings were resumed at 1:30 o'clock today. Colonel Harding said today that daily sessions of the hearing will be interrupted by the Congressional hearings on the House District appropriation bill, which may begin next Monday.

Officials of the railway company are guarding with special care the books and records called for by the commission. Each day a wagon load of books is unloaded at the District building, and at the conclusion of the hearing is returned to the company's office, to be reproduced the following day.

Commissioners Newman and Siddons are taking no part in the inquiry, which is being conducted by the Engineer Commissioner. Upon the findings in his report will be determined whether a public hearing will be held by the full board.

MANY ARE ANXIOUS TO GET AUTO-BIKES

Letters From Boys and Girls
Applying for Instructions Still Coming In.

By THE AUTO-BIKE EDITOR.

The Auto-Bike editor is very much encouraged by the large number of inquiries which continue to come into this office every day in reference to The Washington Times auto-bikes. And still more encouraging is the fact that as soon as a boy or girl procures the necessary blanks, he or she proceeds to work at once to have that blank filled out, with the splendid auto-bike as the goal.

Some of the letters received today are as follows:

"Dear Sir: Will you please send us information and blanks for obtaining the auto-bike, and oblige."

"FRANCIS and JULIAN STEINER." Certainly, children; the blanks have been sent.

"Dear Sir: Please send me directions how to get an auto-bike."

"LUCILLE SHIPMAN." The directions have been sent, Lucille, and we hope you are successful.

"Dear Sir: I would like to get subscribers for The Times, and would like you to send me one of those papers that can obtain the auto-bike."

"RAYMOND CALDWELL." We take pleasure in sending you the blanks, etc., by means of which you can obtain the auto-bike.

"Dear Editor: Kindly send me full particulars how to get an auto-bike."

"GERTRAUDE KIDWELL." The particulars have been sent you, Gertrude.

"Dear Sir: Kindly send me full particulars as to how to obtain one of your auto-bikes. Respectfully yours,"

"ROBERT THOMPSON." We are sending you the particulars, Robert, and certainly hope that you are successful.

Protest on Bixby Report in Lake Front Controversy Made to Secretary of War.

Political, civic, and commercial Chicago was represented in the hearing before Secretary of War Garrison here today, where the final struggle for the possession of the lake shore from Grant Park to Jackson Park by the South Park commission was staged.

Led by Judge John Barton Payne, of the South Park Commission, the representatives of the city crowded into the big office in the War Department, and made united protest against the adoption of the report of Brig. Gen. William H. Bixby, which would have the Federal Government refuse the Park Commission the right to improve the land along the lake.

Judge Payne opened the discussion by reviewing briefly the struggle the city of Chicago has made for the possession of the lake front, and made frequent reference to a large map of the lake shore which stood at Secretary Garrison's left. General Bixby was present.

"We have always believed that the lake belonged primarily to the people," said Judge Payne, "but never in the history of the city has the south shore been available to the thousands and tens of thousands who lived in sight of its waters. The possibilities of an improvement in the lake front, and the need for such an improvement on the South Side is, if anything, even greater."

Scranton Prisoner Is Not Nelson Long

The colored man arrested yesterday in Scranton, Pa., is not Nelson Long, alleged lawyer of Nellie Williams, colored cook, in the home of Captain Knapp, 166 Twenty-second street, northwest, who was shot to death several weeks ago. This information was contained in a dispatch received at Police Headquarters today from Central Office Detective O'Brien, who went to Scranton to look at the prisoner.

Union Services Today.

The union services of the Eckington and Bloomingdale churches will take place this afternoon in the Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Protestant Church. This change was made necessary on account of the large attendance at the meetings.

Cardinals Leave After Exercises

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Cardinal Farley, of New York, left the city last night after having officiated at the cornerstone laying at St. Thomas Aquinas College of the Paulist Mission, adjoining the Catholic University. They were also present at the semi-annual meeting of the trustees of the university yesterday.

A portrait of the late Archbishop Ryan, of Philadelphia, presented by Mrs. Margaret Ryan Bowen, of Philadelphia, was unveiled and a speech of the university in the way of dormitories, gymnasium and new chemical laboratory were discussed informally.

Fighting Rum in France.

PARIS, Nov. 20.—The bill limiting the number of establishments where distilled liquors can be sold will be discussed by the chamber of deputies tomorrow. The senate has passed the measure, and more than 200,000 women prayed, in a petition, that it become a law.
